Relationship Education

Congratulations on taking this next step in your relationship.

Our program offers you an opportunity to explore your relationship with the support of a professionally trained educator who can assist you in preparing for the journey ahead.

What is Relationship Education?

Relationship Education is an opportunity to stop and focus on your relationship prior to taking this next important step. This process equips couples with some conflict resolution and communication strategies which can assist people as they navigate a life together. It seeks to identify the strengths and challenges in your relationship as informed by current research in this area.

Who Should Attend?

- Engaged couples
- Couples who are considering making a life long commitment to each other
- Couples considering marriage or changing living arrangements
- Couples who are living together

About the Programs

We have two distinct ways we offer this program:

1. Time For Us

This is a series of 3 or 4 sessions attended by the couple and one of our educators. We use an inventory called FOCCUS which you complete on-line at home. This is a great springboard to start discussions. The sorts of issues we discuss include but are not limited to your expectations, communication patterns, managing differences, conflict resolution, children, religion and finances.

2. Is Love Enough?

Is great for those who enjoy working with others and exploring a variety of issues in a group forum. It is run as a group session on a Friday evening and Saturday. This group session is based on current research about what makes long term relationships successful. A variety of topics are explored including communication, problem solving and conflict resolution. This forum gives couples the opportunity to explore those issues with other couples.

When Should We Attend?

For those couples with wedding dates already set, Relationship Education is best undertaken six months prior. However, we realise that is not always feasible and Centacare will be as flexible as possible in accommodating your individual circumstances.
